

I just wanted to express my support for phone number portability between wireless carriers -- the only ones opposed to this are the companies who don't see how they can make money off of this, but this is one thing we as consumers would like to see.